

Growing Greener

Sunday, September 16, 2007

White Marseilles Fig

This is "White Marseilles" = Lattarulla = Lemon fig. It's been growing in a container for 3 years. This summer it "almost" had a fig but that fell off, so I've never tasted one from this tree.

It wasn't happy in the container, drying out too fast. The leaves are pale and look ready to fall off now, ahead of the other in-ground fig trees.

This location is the former home of a raspberry that got out of hand, the berries were small. I like the Fallgold better - bigger, sweeter, and smaller plant. So, I dug out the raspberry, and planted this tree into the ground. Added crushed eggshells for calcium, and covered the soil with a leaf compost mulch.

I also planted 30 bulbs of a small narcissus around the edges, for Spring color.

Labels: fig, narcissus

posted by Daniel at 10:16 AM

0 Comments:

Post a Comment

Links to this post:

Create a Link

<< Home

Living greener, "puttering meditator" in the garden, the value of trees, being healthy, sometimes commuting by bike, growing fruits, vegetables, and flowers in a suburban sustainable "yarden", trying to be more earth friendly.

About Me

Name: Daniel

Location: Vancouver, Washington, United States

Each snowflake in an avalanche pleads not guilty. - Margaret Mead

View my complete profile

ThinkExist.com Quotes

Vancouver, WA

Get the 10 day forecast

81° F
Clear

Feels Like: 81° F
Humidity: 37%
Wind: NW at 7 mph

The Weather Channel
weather.com

Severe Weather

Garden Calendar
For Your Lawn
For Your Garden
Today in Weather

Previous

- Bathroom Project
 - Brugmansia
 - Angels Rest
- Early Fall Main Crop Figs
- Grapes in Cherry Tree
 - Fall Blossoms
 - Nings Chickens
 - After a hiatus
- Bathroom Project
 - veggies

Visit Atheist Nexus

My blog is worth

$2,258.16.

How much is your blog
worth?

